

The only people who currently meet eligibility criteria are:

- Indiana residents 65 years of age or older (starting Feb. 1)
- Healthcare workers who live in Indiana, or who can show proof they work in Indiana, and have face-to-face interactions with patients or contact with infectious material in a healthcare setting
- First responders who are firefighters, police officers or sheriff's deputies, Emergency Medical Services, reservists, or correctional officers who live in Indiana, or show proof that they work in Indiana, and who are regularly called to the scene of an emergency to give medical aid

This does not include anyone outside of the “first responder” definition above. A nonexhaustive list of people who currently DO NOT meet eligibility criteria: 911 dispatchers, other city employees with the local designation of “first responders,” judges, lawyers, prosecutors, bus drivers, snow plow drivers, sanitation workers, volunteers, or clergy who are not actively seeing patients in a hospital or long-term care setting.

As noted above, eligible recipients must live in Indiana or show proof that they are employed by an Indiana business and meet the above criteria. A photo ID, proof of age, or verification of current employment as a healthcare worker or first responder (according to the above definition) will be required upon arrival at the vaccination clinic.
